in the economic plans of Argentina, a change has occurred in the plans of the Argentine government as far as their Cuban projects are concerned. The projected Cuban-Argentine Bank of the Antilles will not be established at the present time.

- During the early part of October, Cesar A. Bunge y Alvarez Calderon, Commercial Attache of the Argentine Embassy in Washington, D. C., was in Habana organizing the plans for a smaller company instead of the proposed large commercial enterprise originally planned to operate with the advantages of the free port of Matanzas. The corporation, which is to have a total capital of $30,000, allegedly will operate in the commercial field alone and will be strictly an experiment. The corporation will import American goods, among others, and allegedly will not antagonize the United States' commercial interests in Cuba.
